Profile

I'm a self-taught artist with a strong interest in pursuing a career within the gaming industry. My current skills include mainly graphic design and video editing whilst I continue to develop newer ones such as digital art and 3D modelling. I'm incredibly motivated when in the process of learning new skills and therefore pick them up relatively quickly.

Having spent years learning to work both independently and collaboratively in a number of customer-facing hospitality and retail positions, I am very confident in my communication skills. My time studying CELTA gave me an enhanced ability to explain concepts and give instructions in a clear and concise manner which adds to my proficiency to lead or assist in any given project.

Freelance Experience

I've been taking on freelance work whenever possible for a number of years. I love being able to bring other people's ideas to life and stretch my own imagination and problem-solve during projects I find challenging. This has been a great method for pushing past my comfort zone as a creator.

HOBBIES & INTERESTS

Art is a hobby of mine just as much as it's something I'd like to pursue as a full-time career. Originally I tended to focus on a more realistic style of portraiture but have since found a love for a number of styles & subjects such as landscape painting.

Art also intersects with my passion for video games which is another activity I indulge in casually and professionally to a certain capacity. I have worked with companies like GAME alongside other members of Black Girl Gamers appearing in promotional materials and hosting events. I also use my skills in art and design in my role as a content creator on Twitch & YouTube.

Language study is another interest of mine which that I've casually indulged in over the years. Whilst I have an aspiration to learn a wide variety of languages including Spanish, French, Mandarin and Arabic; my main focus has been in Japanese.
